32 THE PEARLS OF PROGRAMMING

So let you want to be a programmer but you've got no cash, no talent and no game. Or do think you've got a problem?

42 PAINTING THE TOWN RED

The YC team take on a bunch of rogues from Group 4. Return a machine painted red, outrageous.

MURDER - The Green game, this is shockingly good one to boot. You get a chance to wander around an Elizabethan mansion questioning people about their love lives, eating habits, favourite activities, and not-invented (yet), it's a bit like doing a company profile!

KENNEY DAIGLEISH SOCCER MATCH - Could this be the best football game ever? No not a chance. If you want a good laugh look at the commentators and play'll be rolling around on the floor for ages to let the on-field footballers!

But First This..

Did you notice that something was missing in your lives for just one month? Was there a big gap? Did you wander around with your gaps gaping open in a dull numbness? Well, I can solve your mystery dilemma with a few select words, 'we missed a month.' I hope that's answered your queries, no more letters to Arthur C. Clarke. "Gut" I hear you say, "Why?"

Go and look at the masthead, and in particular the address. Go on, I'll wait here... Turn... Turn... Be... Turnover... Right, notice anything different? Yes, we've moved, no more Hemel Hempstead for us rising reporters, so sure, hello Milton Keynes, and hello new publisher "Gut" you say again, "This still doesn't answer why you missed a month?"

Ah, but it does, you say we had no much stuff to move that it took Ashley absolutely ages to pack, clean, and un-pack.

everything I almost felt sorry for him as I sat at my sparkling new desk looking on, told you the HEMPSA did phone a few times about exactly to what, but I assured them that Ash enjoyed the work. Next time he'll just have to get a bigger car.

On smoggy coffee shops, and bubble smogging we came to you yet again with a more Milton Keynes sort of mag, and if you don't enjoy it, the same knowledge-base violence is appropriate.

THINGS TO COME

A look at tomorrow's new releases - yesterday

It's 1990. It's cold and it's a strike for truth, justice and the non-toxic American way. (SOOTY ST 1990) is a rather rare approach to the problem-solving game. The president of America has authorized an FBI/ACORN/COMMO/Police to wipe bad-boy barons from the Earth's surface. Armed only with your wits, lots of dirty words and the phone, you must attempt to discover that Sooty had a game you committed with each shoulder shouldered in August 1989. You are. Available from (95 C&G) on 5.99 on cassette and 14.99 on disk, hopefully so you read this.

Footy games seem to be dominating on the new-release front currently. Just because Gamemaster didn't quite make it for the month in his life didn't mean they couldn't try on the 64. Look out for GLOBETROT, coming your way soon from Galatin Games. Apparently the programmer is trying to make the game fought for both as it's too hard when they played it you know who to beat!

Following on the huge success of their first project HAMMYPHANT, Richard Beard design team that brings the working on TMC MACHINE. The old system, around the way programmer Puff, who has to go back to his old job, the quality Addition, the marketing project, which will be about the best on the 64 in HAMMYPHANT. As about 9.99 and 14.99 on prices.

The long-awaited CROCODILEHEAD seem to be available from the Project team. The 3-D world of it, it's up the team's mind for ages on 15.99 on computer and 14.99 on cassette. The team have been inspired for years. They'll only have to wait for another couple of weeks. Then you can struggle to your heart's content. The original made RUTH's graphics look like a boy you can expect the sequel to break their interest in early.

Shoot groups come and shoot are up again. They don't actually become the most popular type of game since the year 2001 is not being re-done, modernized or redesigned in the hope of pleasing the fans of the game (and getting some more data out of them). The latest incarnation to appear on the 64 of the horizontal scrolling one which is no graphics, it's more like a life. Look out, it's a real-life one. It's more like a FORTNIGHT UP from Impression. And it's good it looks too. If you are to believe everything that the software houses say about their games (which of course you shouldn't, but it looks good anyway).

Developer software have been terribly busy but of late, as well as an EXCLUSIVE from the team of DREAMWORKS ARCADE (D&G), we can now travel another great game coming your way in the shape of HELLBOSS BROTHER. It's, describe the potential for a full-sized simulation it's got nothing to do with conspiracy, it's of programmer thinking it up on console and rules. No, the game involves lots, where have I heard that before? Well, the publisher had had nothing better to do than fill out of members. More cool. Also from the Hammerhead's corner that first ever arcade license. EXTREMADORA. You have to get a subliminal one from an attack of madly needs. That's coming soon.

Well, later with POWERUP! (2) editors are getting ahead in much-alterable on feature. This enormous 1990 is a POWERUP! (2) (D&G) COMMO. Guess what? This is the plot of an all possible mental machine, which basically gives you a chance to kill, then and then as many people as possible in as short a time as possible. Who said it was deep and meaningful? Just say you're a bit of a nerd. Just be and forget. It looks on ending MATH - you know, it's a good game, 5.0 graphics and fast animation. It's what's new? Coming soon.

Electronica comes a-bounce with the old working. Universal is getting a new computer version of the classic HYPERS. As the game was the personal of some friends, I hope for their sake that they do a good job. The new 64. And the new sound system, using stereo, making good, giving up to 100,000 more notes. And if that doesn't work, sleeping their with no regular (but) good sleep for the rest. It's for the rest and then it's. And/or one too. Nice one (Electronica).

WELCOME TO THE NEW LOOK YC

As you may have noticed, YC has undergone major surgery, and the team think that it is a darn sight more "user-friendly". We are the only C64 dedicated games mag, and we're jolly well proud of it too. This is a new era for the magazine with bigger whabads than any other, so with a new publisher, the concrete splendor of Milton Keynes, and a few NEW members of the YC team forget the (yawn!) other rags and you'll get more than you could possibly have wasted from us!!!

GRUISE INTO THE SCENE

Watch out grime, Tom's here, although there's absolutely no need to stick your fingers down your throats as there is a game coming based on his exploits in his latest film 'Days of Thunder'.

Days features the exploits of our Tom as he strives to win the ultimate Stock Car race at Daytona, and the C64 version will be written by Tortex Ltd., famous for the excellent Italy 1990. It should be available around October, a short while after the film's release.

THE CROWD GO BANANAS

Khanis, the company that put Yoo into Manchester 'footed, is to hit us with another footy game in the shape of John Barnes (yes, probably in a box-sort-of shape really, but you get the grip of it).

The England man, who has one more season left on his Liverpool contract, will be roving into your shops around the start of the footy season.

ARTS' SPARKS (AND BODY PARTS)

Rainbow Arts, the company behind the two excellent hits X-Out and Turmoil, is at it again, but grab for the bucket as its latest is a new step in the sickeningly cute way.

Apprentice is a platform game with a touch of adventuring to be done, all in the mould of the Japanese-style arcade games. The hero this time is a small wizard who must progress from level to level solving doofers, and unlocking doymeflips. It is all done in the nicest possible way and we at YC are waiting in eager anticipation to see if it's any bit as good as Rainbow Islands and Flambo's Quest (the cornerstones of the genre).

LEISURE SUIT LARRY HITS THE BIG TIME

Estwhile industry personality, and hairy dude, Larry Sparks has been promoted to European marketing manager of Activision (UK) Ltd. This comes as no surprise although YC wonders if he'll still be doing his tea round in the Reading based offices.

EG

Apprentice may be a good game, but it's not the only one. The company's new game, Apprentice, is a platform game with a touch of adventuring to be done, all in the mould of the Japanese-style arcade games. The hero this time is a small wizard who must progress from level to level solving doofers, and unlocking doymeflips. It is all done in the nicest possible way and we

ES

TWO DOWN (BUT WITH INJURY TIME BEING PLAYED)

The major shock of the computer world (for the minute, anyway) was the recent demise of both Tynesoft, and Grandslam. Both companies have had their ups and downs in the way of releases and both have felt the bite of a particularly savage Spring.

This means that neither company will release any impending titles, although Tynesoft (the German based company, whose sales and marketing were being performed by Grandslam) is to continue to release product in this country through US Gold. And Horowitz is currently seeking another company to take over the sales and marketing for its Elven game.

Our immediate concern though is, who's going to run the charity footy match this year, eh?

MOORE OF THE SAME

To continue the tradition of game releases featuring Britain's best loved (and more promiscuous) spy, Connors has The Spy Who Loved Me coming out in September. There is some nostalgia attached to this one as it was the first Bond movie that I saw in the cinema, and even then, apparently, the projector broke down and he got his money back after only seeing the first half. The game though, should not be as tragic considering the track record of recent Bond games, although those who remember A View to a Kill may tread a little lightly.

CHEATS ALWAYS PROSPER

Hot Shot
Entertainments has launched a new way for you to spend uncanny amounts of dosh, as the way of one of those 6666 numbers. This one though could be the bane of many a slunk semester.

The Megatop Catharine promises to deliver the hot secrets of the latest games, although it will cost you 26¢ per minute at cheap rate and 38¢ per minute at any other time.

We'd recommend that you use our Scum of the Earth pages to find out the solutions to your probe, it's a lot cheaper, but if you're adamant (Not if you're Adam Arr!) try ringing 0800 260000. There'll be a report in a later issue about lines like this.

KEYHOLE...

The first YC reader to guess correctly the game's company whose office that fake shot were taken in (there are clues!) will win loads of software ($50 worth, good), send your entries to: Coc, What a Grubby Office Compco, YC, Alhambra Publishing Co., 30 Potters Lane, Rm Farm, Milton Keynes MK11 3NF.

The government's only non-managed gaur park, which has been under pressure to fold in the New City area, has a few gaur which are kept, but the forest is being taken over and eventually also likely to come under similar threat from other land users.

In fact there is nothing quite like a good bit of sleuthing and Murder emphasises this. It is a game that takes the idea of Cluedo and expands upon it a little of times, so much so that the game contains nearly 2,000,000 different murders

In a newspaper-like display you can

You can also question all the guests and staff at the house by pointing your spy glass at them and selecting the Gossip menu (make sure it's really). This brings up a new screen with more clues on it, and using a small amount of sweeping and changing you can get them to tell you all that they know about everybody everything, and everywhere. Each answer that they give, if you deem it interesting, you can store in your notebook, which once called up will have every piece of information filed in different categories. For example if Mr. Bartle Snagbucket said that Mrs. Hilda Snagbucket was blackmailed the victim, then that information would

When you feel you know what object was used in the murder you can pick it up and confront the murderer with it, this will result in the newspaper showing up again with either congratulations for the super sleuth, or a story accusing your suspect's innocence. If you feel though you can always choose that some murder again as they are not random.

Murder is immaculate in presentation, and the black-and-white graphics for the movement screen create just the right atmosphere. This is not everyone's cup of tea, due to the complexity of such a simple murder, and even the simplest one will take a fair while to suss out correctly let alone 8 million at them. MANCHESTER UNITED

KRISALIS -
$9.99 Tape,
$14.99 Disk.

You may be wondering why a Liverpool supporter like PKK is reviewing a game with Man Utd as it's title. So is he...

I dislike Manchester United as a football team. I remember seeing their 2-1 win over us on New Years day 1999 and since then I've despised the way they play. There are also many others like me, and this makes the move to have a game solely for the one club, and to be honest any club, baffling as it alternates to many game players.

That said, most Liverpool, Man City, Arsenal, etc. fans should not judge a book by it's cover as this game is definitely the most playable football game to hit the stands. It is a dual game, and a rather unique one at that, in the fact that it contains the action aspect of most football games, and the management side in an even more complex way. From the great Football Manager I'm taking about the game, and certainly not Alex Ferguson, and when both are combined it's pretty hot stuff.

The management section is the first to load and contains more features than a lot of games that offer this role aspect. It is all done driven, and all controlled via the joystick, thus making life a lot easier for the real Man Utd supporters (JC would like to apologize to all Manchester United supporters, if you like to reply to this unwanted abuse write to Post Apologues). There are stats for training, fitness, transfer market, team list, newspaper headlines, and other options that help make this half of the game fully complete. And once everything has been chosen (including making the team statistics for the opposition a note lower than your own) it is off to the other side of the tape and the match itself.

Once this has loaded, and it doesn't take long, you have the chance to either watch your team's performance under the full control of the computer, or you can participate yourself. The gameplay is much like Italy 1990, although the pitch expands from left to right, and not vertically.

When the match is over, it's back to the management section to perform your tasks all over again. There is the full first division to play home and away and both the FA and Liffemooth Cups, making it a long term prospect, especially for computer users. I was more than impressed at the whole package and I would recommend that any fan of football should give the game a whirl, and like our good friend Kelly said, "A rose by any other name can still get a good cross in!"

One, look at the options.

FLAME HEAD

FLAME'S COIN - AS TOLD BY THE SPOTTYBROOD, A FAIRY FROM KENSAL
GREEN!

'ROOTS'
PART ONE FIRST

ONCE UPON A WINDY DAY, A SPOTTYBROOD DID GO!

I'D LOVE TO BUILD A SCOTTISH
HUT, BUT I CAN'T JUMP AND FLY!

WELL, HE'D JUST GONE
THROUGH THE HOLE
NUMBER FIFTY FIVE!

ONCE THE GOD HAS BUILT
HE SCURED PERK-OVER IT, AND THREW ON A LIGHTED MATCH
SO THAT EVERYTHING WAS HOT.
BUT ONLY THE HAIR CAUGHT ALIGHT AND DID HE FEEL A TWIT!

THE RAINY TOWN WAS HIS FINE, EASE HE HAD A HEALTHY FIRE,
SOME TRIED TO MAKE A REPLICA OUT OF CARD AND BITS OF WIRE.

HIS MONEY MATTERS WERE VERY BAD AND LOANING RATHER BAD!

HE FLIPPED IT IN THE PANNS AND IT HUNG AN INCH OR TWO.
YET LINES DID WAVE AND TREMBLE,
BUT ITS FACE TURNED MARVE AND BUE.

BECAUSE WHEN IT CAME TO BAKING
IT HADN'T GOT A CLUE!

THE PROF RAISED HIM LIKE A CHILD, AND 'TRAMPHEAD' WAS HIS NAME.
HE TAUGHT HIM TO USE HIS HANDS TO RIP AND TEAR AND MAIM.

BUT WHEN FLAME BE FOUND AGAIN
HE WAS NEVER QUITE THE SAME.

SAT LIKE EVERY OTHER STICK,
THE ENDING IS QUITE SAD.
THE PROF HAD HAD WANTED FLAME, AND HAD REALLY BEEN HIS DAD, DISAPPEARED WITHOUT A TRACE
SO FLAME SAID.

OH, TOO BAD!

AND FLAME BECAME A LEGEND
IN PAGES AND VIDEOS AND BOOKS, WHO TAKES GREAT PLEASURE IN SHOOTING
FISH IN BARRY SUITS.

BUT NOW HIS GUTS BURNING, TO TRY AND FLAP HIS BIRDS.

NEXT:
FOOTSWAMP
NO ICE!

ON THE TAPE

And so the seventh tape did come to pass, and the readers did rejoice, for there were not two mega astonishingly good games (big other two cassette on either C&A mega) but three, and all of them never seen on cassette before. Yippeee! Hoorah!...

Running Order:

Side A: Phobos, Limbo.
Side B: Frege in Space.

P H O B O S

Now you are, a fearless wing of a guy that conducts a walking/flying machine. So what's wrong with that? Well, unfortunately you're locked away in jail. X.

Now for some people this might, just be fine, but not for you. No, no, your only intention now is to break out and regain your freedom. In order to achieve this task you will have to negotiate five levels of alone, which get more and more devious the further you go.

The screen is split into two different views, the top one being from overhead and the bottom being seen from the side. In order to destroy an alien you must align both top and bottom views of your craft to the approaching little sucker.

On level one you must destroy 20 aliens, 30 on level two, 40 on level three and (er...) 50 on level four. When you've managed this awesome task, you have succeeded in breaking out. Whenever you start a fresh task, remember where you were teleported into. If both top and bottom views are where you need to be.

There are no lives in the normal series, but every time you hit an alien or a bomb, your score will reset to zero and you will start again (on the same level). To stop playing, simply press the RESTORE key and the title page will appear. When you restart, you will start from the level that you quit from, but with a score of zero.

Controls

Joystick control changes slightly depending on whether you are flying or walking. If you are walking, joystick left moves your top screen man up

(ie. to the right). Joystick up moves your bottom screen man up to flying position.

If your bottom screen man is already flying then joystick up and down change slightly. Joystick up moves your bottom screen man higher and faster, and joystick down makes your bottom screen man lose height and slow down or land. (If, like Ash, you are a garden-playing maggot then you will find no problem with the above controls. Those of us firmly rooted to mother earth will need to get ourselves a fax.)

LIMBO

This is NOT a dance simulator but a seemingly good action/adventure number, as plug your joystick into port five (that's the second port for lucky hoggers!) and wibble it around a bit. It won't get you anywhere so you'll probably have to think a little too.

The loss of the game (are you sitting comfortably?) is to clear all of the white off each screen by moving your droid over them. You can also take your chance by activating question mark blocks, some of which are good, but some are pretty much poxy.

The game is dead simple to play as all you have to do is clear each spot of white whilst avoiding the green and dangerous blocks. On some screens there is a life that will carry you to other parts of the area. To found it simply press fire when you are touching it and release fire when you want to get off. The first bit appears on Zone 1 and is represented by a spinning disc.

Other Blocks

Other than the cell blocks there are the

FROGS IN SPACE

FROGS
IN SPACE

Alright, we admit it. This is not the most original game in the galaxy, but then again neither is Kicko Down-Ganger (or "kicking greenies out of bed", as they call it oop North), but we've all played it some time, and to be honest it was quite funny too. Now Frogger (we closed a space suit and he is back to his old ways in the suit, busy space lanes. And this time there is no gaily-walling at the stars and to get the little amphibious star traveller back to his batchelor pad you must firstly avoid all the interstellar traffic, and then catch a lift in order to guide him into each of the cozy bubbly holes at the top of the screen.

Apart from dodging all the space traffic, and firing jumps to Mark 11's perfection, there are other hazards. These include combinations of four missions of spacecraft formations, a Pac-man at the central observation trophy fed on a diet of the froggy, and the usual interstellar traffic speed and the amount of time to reach home.

Your score will increase by 10 points when you hop forward, it will also increase for every unit of time remaining when a frog reaches home. There is also a chance to gain extra frogs by collecting the letters to spell the word FROGUS in certain levels.

There are 32 levels to complete. You may start on any of the first 16, leaving the last level 31 the last.

There is also a hidden access code to enable you to play on ANY level and the first correct one to reach on will win a few top games.

following:

Teleports - The text of these appears on screen 3 and is represented by a block with a smaller flashing block in the centre.

Question Marks - To activate one of these move to its centre and press the fire button. A number of things can happen including: Stars, Speed Up (Droo), Slow Down (Droo), and Warp to the next Level. Question Marks can also change into other blocks.

Grading Pace (Stars) - Touching one of these will give you an extra life.

Skulls - Touch one of these and you lose some life force.

Level 7 has the introduction of disappearing blocks.

The game will end when your life force has run out. When you are being hit force the two Aquas in the bottom border will turn

But once everything is chosen it is here that Kenny's takes the biscuit then appear on a non-descript raft of grass, looking as if they'd fallen into a car compactor and been spat out as misshapen lumps. Also instead of an arrow at the head of the player on control, like most footy games, Impressions has plumped for an upside down cross. I think somebody should mention to them that this signifies infestation, and is the mark of the devil. I even thought of playing the tape backwards to see if there was some form of hidden message.

And then the match begins, and the players (your players anyway) poot around trying to control the ball, stuffed with a cigarette on his, if you have misjudged it and the ball goes off for a goal kick, then a pair of a bold ref with a non-descript will appear with a sound much like a heavy breather blowing through a reed. And that's about it.

One other thing about the gameplay though. As I was the only (and therefore the mighty Liverpool) I let my friend have a crack at the action, and why not, the opposition wasn't going to stop him. That was when I discovered that you can only have one goalkeeper on screen at one time, so when he finally arrived at the goal (yawn) the blunder keeper had mysteriously vanished leaving an empty net.

And oh how I laughed when my reds had won 12-0 and Kenny's quick message came up on screen. I don't know if it is just me but when he said "A magnificent game!" I had to quickly rush to the toilet.

The easiest way to score a goal, and just about the only way as it is almost impossible to kick the ball in the direction you want, is to leg it forward with the ball ahead and put it into the goal. This will result in a picture of dainty celebrating, and a hiss that sounds as if someone has

Hammett is a game set in a distant future. A future where people, businesses, and even who are evil and nefarious. Not only that, the mission has degenerated to the extent that the holograms

Behind all of this evil laser image looks bad for the future of Earth, and C-H's hologram computer signs up in Mistakes and, of course, Hammett.

Old Hammy is a big bawdy brute, a strategy of switching between carefully thought on, essential to completing the game.

negative area. Each character has its own energy level. If this falls below a certain level then the character is temporarily dead and play automatically switches to the other character. (Should both characters die then the game is over.) Luckily there are also recharge points built into the environment made from radioactive pools of steaming water. And the ever-present robots become slower and more cautious by the minute. With every screen it becomes more difficult to break free from the security system and escape to the next challenge. Your skills with gun, fist and foot will be identical and the 64 version is superbly done. The characters are neatly drawn and beautifully animated. Whilst the graphics and game design have had almost two years spent on them the game is so very playable. Offhandedly the danger of producing a technically brilliant game is that it becomes unplayable but not Hammerfist.

The style evokes all the classic impossible hit men but that doesn't mean that the game is unoriginal. Far from it, Hammerfist is a terrific achievement. It is a triumph of game design over another version of a

EMLYN HUGHES' A

AUDIOGRAPHIC -

"Nah! It was Pete you daft git! Git No, Git I told you it was C..."

Pub trivia games are often an bit of a laugh. Of course it's all good-spirited, because the half-out looks who play them are just trying to win a bit more beer money. WHAQ does nothing to try to alter the image of pub-trivia machines, but thanks to its knowledge of Who cares? It's a great game. Even Emily's cheerful mug couldn't disguise the fact that the game is about winning money.

There are really two fruits are about the game. It is a right-to-left scrolling game. The board is made up of squares. These squares may be blank, carry a fruit or such on a question mark. Landing on a question mark gives a trivia question of the relevant subject, according to what colour the square that you landed on was. The questions have three answers displayed, and the right one will need to be chosen. Should you get the question wrong then another is asked and so on.

Other squares are pyramids that into your pointer invisible squares, patterns that propel you in a random direction (there are extremely nasty, rapid-fire and bonus round minigames). All of these affect your progress one way or another and practice will help you get to get the best true flow. As you progress to the right of the screen, the screen tries to catch up from the left, and traps you if you land around for too long. So there are often tough decisions to make about making going for something or not. If you progress right to the other side of the display you can leave the level by the same method, or stepping onto the end band.

The Perils of Programming

Programming your game? As someone once said: "The best way to earn a small fortune writing computer games, start with a large fortune". Kate Harlowe made her head and dispels many beliefs

So you want to be a programmer? You want to be rich, you want to be famous and you want to sell mountains of games. In a couple of years you could be cruising round the country in your QJ! Your latest software is being bouncing around on the book shelf. Alternatively you could be sopping your guts out in the spare room, blowing over a hot monitor for 24 hours a day and still be absolutely skint. Programming can be a perilous profession, especially when you're new to it. The route to success is an absolute mine, unless you know where you're going, you could end up flat on your face.

Under starter's orders

There are two ways to get into the business of programming games. Most straightforward and the risk, though that doesn't mean there won't be any problems, is to join an existing software house or programming team. You'll get a regular salary and a structured workload but you won't be working as an independent agent and you won't be working for yourself. The alternative is to put yourself up as an independent technician and that's how a large proportion of programmers in the business actually work.

Hurdle Number 1: Getting the show on the road

You've written another Kenac II and you're determined to be even bigger than the Boring Brothers. And who's the hairy godfather who'd make your dreams come true? A software house, right? Wrong. Even if you have produced a masterpiece, the odds of a million chance that the software house will be contacted, you're a guess straight away. No company is going to waste its money and make you a star overnight. Laurie Bennett, editor of the monthly newsletter for the Society of Software Authors, an organisation set up to give advice and information to newcomers, is still surprised at how naive young programmers can be.

"They walk off to a stand at the PD Show with a two-page game design and expect to come away with a big fat cheque, the industry isn't like that any more."

Computer software is big business and it's a business run by professionals. If you want them to take any notice of you, you've got to approach them in a professional way. OK, so you may be working from your bedroom but that doesn't mean you should present your design like a piece of crumpled homework. First off pack an appropriate software house it's no good sending an HPD, say to a company like Games that specialises in arcade conversions, they won't be interested. Take stock of what a company's produced before and imagine your game fitting into their product list. Just make sure you haven't produced a clone of something they released last month, they're unlikely to be tempted. Just writing a letter usually isn't good enough. Take the ball by the horns and make an appointment by phone if they agree to see you. Have a like chance to sell yourself. Make sure you provide as much detail as possible of the presentation. A two-page game design isn't going to capture anybody's imagination. The USA advises that you should include as much information as possible: plot, characters and scenes whenever you can. Even if the scenario isn't entered, or the game isn't in a fully playable state, they give a much better idea of what the final product might look like than any drawing or diagram could.

Hurdle Number 2: The Contract

They've taken the bait, they want the game. Don't trip the contract straight away. It is a binding, legal document and you could end up being taken to court over its contents so it's common sense to work out exactly what it says. Consult a solicitor or someone with the appropriate legal knowledge to design the contract language and make sense of the small print. If you don't you can't be sure it says exactly what you think it does. Too often, programmers run into trouble because they sign up in a hurry without really considering the financial viability of a deal or because they don't realize what they've committed to. If there's a royalty statement are you entitled to business royalties as well, do you have first refusal on conversions, will you keep the copyright, what conditions are there on payment and so on?

Hurdle Number 3: The Deadline

Dee Buxter, author of Software Development Manager of US Gold "There may not be weeks left until the end of the schedule, the Amstrad and Spectrum versions haven't been started and the guy still seems to think he'll be finished on time."

Programmers are notorious for being late and some of the industry's worst horror stories are about programmers practically killing themselves to get a job finished on time. And usually the delays aren't due to circumstances beyond everyone's control. Unrealistically crafted deadlines, bad time management and perfection are major factors when it comes to burning the candle at both ends.

It's a problem faced by anyone who makes their living working for themselves; you've got to discipline yourself. That means working out a schedule for completing particular aspects of a game and making every effort possible to stick to it. It's easy to lose track of time or let yourself get leaving those long-winded bits of routine coding to another day.

Mark Walker, author of the excellent games book Mean and Coder, identifies another

This programmer took it too far and took what happened to him programming pitfall: perfectionism. If you've got a game that's 90% finished, the remaining 10% can take you as long again to complete. You spend ages getting everything just right and then when the game finally gets on tape, badly imbedded mistakes are the difference.

Obviously you want your game to look as good as possible but you've got to balance the sacrifices against the efficient use of time. In any business there is money, and the more time it takes the less money you're making per hour.

A product that's very behind schedule can cause a programmer serious problems. Depending on the contract, the software house may be perfectly entitled to delay a pay installment. Inevitably professional relations sour and future contracts may be jeopardized. That's before you take into consideration the late nights, the Pro Plus and the physical consequences of stress.

Hurdle Number 4: The Dosh

There are lots of ways to earn your million but becoming a programmer surely isn't one of them. All programmers work hard to earn their living but only a few get the big time and strike it rich. The big names that everybody's heard of are the exception, not the rule. One of the biggest grips is the average programmer's life is money. You may think that whatever's specified in the contract—lump-sum or royalty advance payment or regular monthly cheques—is a guarantee of payment, but it's not. Most freelance programmers are paid late and some never get paid at all. Money certainly doesn't come in as regularly as it would if you were doing a proper job in a supermarket or bank.

Even a contractual promise of regular monthly payments isn't bulletproof. Tom (who names have been changed to protect the innocent) found that every one of his monthly cheques came at least one month late. One of the companies Richard worked for had a policy of not paying up for a minimum of 60 days. Another only paid the fee ten days after the invoice but it's not unknown for cheques to bounce or for companies to pay less than the contract states. Your last resort could mean going to court.

If you're unlucky (and not everyone is) this can lead to a spiral of financial problems. Harry realized he was in trouble when the bills started flooding in more regularly than his pay cheques. By the end of the project, he was totally short and ready to accept any job he could take. In desperation, he signed the first contract that came along—under equally disadvantageous financial terms.

The Finishing Line

You've made it. Your game's out at the shelves. The reviews are fantastic (of course) and you're sitting back counting the cash. If you've been paid in a lump sum, how much the game sells won't affect you at all. If you're dependent on royalties you could be in for one final shock. However good the reviews they don't guarantee how well a game will sell. Even if you're hooked on the greatest games since E.T. (which I won't do you any financial good unless there's money behind all that mouth

And after all that, let's take a look at your bank balance. How much you've got depends on market forces, the quality of your product and how profitable a deal you made. You could come out rich (but not that rich) and you could come out broke. Most likely, you'll end up somewhere inbetween.

Some software houses treat their programmers like underpaid slaves

POST APOCALYPSE

If you want your letters slugged down, and your name to look like mud, you know where to write to.

Alternatively you could give Zzap a miss, and write here instead: POST APOCALYPSE, THE MAN WITH A NOSE BLEED, YC, ALPHAVITE PUBLICATIONS, 20 POTTERS LAKE, KILN FARM, MILTON KEYNES MK11 3HF. But beware, anything that you say may be taken down and slugged to pieces.

IT'S A STICK UP

I think YC is the best £4 magazine in today's shops, but there is one problem: You only put one poster in the magazine every month unlike other mags, where they have loads.

Please, please, please put more posters in, if not for my sake, for my wife's.
Carl Mearns, Leeds

PA: Well, are you greedy or not? (or at least your wife is). You get as many posters as we can give ya, and no more. Now go to bed without any supper.

OROAN PART 52

If you think that everyone who wants to use their computer as more than a child's toy is a member of a dying breed it is lucky that you do not read more readers.

With every computer mag producing the same reviews of the same games there is nothing to choose between them except the prices stuff.

Show us your 'hot material', or do you have to part all the good stuff from GOUT if we are not interested why put a utility on your cover tape?

P. Clarke-Powland, Sheffield

PA: When we put a utility on the tape we were not resorting back to the days of 20-page listings and articles for the plus four. We work, in fact, treating our readers with a small medium of intelligence, and as this industry needs more skilled programmers in the GAMES field, this thought that it'd be a wise idea to help in every way, and if that means using a utility (by far the best utility to have been published in CSM) written exclusively by Monty Male and Paddy Higgins creator Tony Crowther, then so be it. The Lord has spoken and may we all bow to his cunning will!

ALL RED TAPE

I have been buying your magazine for 3 years now, and despite my initial shock at the recent changes, I enjoy very much the new look YC, especially the free tape.

For the past three months, I have had no problems with loading the cassette, but the month's (April 80) tape will not load on side A, despite cleaning my tape recorder and changing its alignment.

Normally I would, of course, just ask the retailer to change the tape/magazine for one with a tape that works. However, the only shop which sells your magazine in my area is in the nearest city, which I can only manage to visit once a month to buy your magazine. It is because of this that from next month I am asking my local newsagent to stock it for me.

I am also asking you to give me a replacement tape as the tape is

LETTA OF THE MUNF!!

I think you are the best thing since fried Spam and for all I care Mrs White-oats can grow into a shrimp-size blob and Pk can come along and pop her little 11 from the side and down everybody in guinea and just a rain with an already cloudy night. Sucks.

PA: I do like a bit of guinea and puke in the morning, but honestly, not even Pk would stoop as low as to 'pop' Mrs. Whitehouse, for fear of breaking his back.

my favourite part of your magazine and this will allow me to buy your mag in confidence of getting a good value buy every month. I thank you in anticipation for my replacement and for the continuing increasing standard of your magazine.

PA: Now here's a small diversion from the normal way we work to give you some choice comments that we've received on the readers survey's so far Ah the office...

If you are working, what is your occupation?

"I have 3 leg and 1 eye disabled, I need a patch."

Is there any way in which you would improve it?

"Get rid of those porn, have reviews on hardware"

PA: There's always a lot

"You're going down the drain - we do not need silly reviews of silly games - hardware reviews and utility software reviews might keep you on my subscription list if ya funny"

PA: Or not!

"By not putting naughty pictures and films in it"

"More kick stuff"

PA: Is this possible?

"Put the old posters of Star Trek"

PA: Nah!!

So I think that's do for now, more next month.

Starring again:
Eugene and a slimy cast of thousands

Greetings gone lovers, and welcome to this month's SOUL OF THE EARTH, the pages which really are YOUR pages. That's because it is essentially written by you, our all-or-nothing readership.

Since not many of you have answered the challenge that I put to you last month (I've actually had to WORM this issue, and you'll find hints for the Bloodyin' Minus is Impassable by Yours Truly), we have though received many letters from people asking for help on certain games. Sorry, but we can't answer each one individually. There's far too much slime in the world out around here as it is. So, we're opening a new Winger's corner, and those of you who need help can have your names and addresses printed so that people can write to you direct. You may even send a new pen friend or two. Write to DOZEM EUGENE'S WINGER'S CORNER at the usual address and if you're under eighteen please get your parents' permission first.

Second piece of good news this month is for those of you with ultra inflated egos. Now, your high scores will at last get a chance to air your achievements (and underarms) in public. Get your highest scores in to me and I'll print them. When sending in your scores, you should also include a photo of yourself. The closer the better! (cos they'll be printed in the SOUL OF THE EARTH pages. What a chance to show off to your friends. Stop, and in an emergency and post them to DOZEM EUGENE'S BLUNTANT ALIEN SOUL MEDIA FRAMES FROM HELL. And to get you going, here's a little gem from my collection: FOR SLOW ISLANDS, ROUND 12 = 1,885,100. Ode to the Soul anyway.

skateboard. Go back up and turn the mine, run right, get to the top of the ladder then wait for the snake to disappear. Run down and get the coin. Drop past the bats then run under them to the conveyor. Run under the crusher.

Jump over the second pillar to avoid the drop, grab the gun then jump up to the gem, have drop and shoot the skeleton and mine. Jump the frog then shoot the other skeletons. Go right, avoid the bat and the tin hat on legs then go right again. The drop keeps at the little grey thing that emerges from the ground onto the top of the screen. Stay whenever you want.

Exit, then drop. Avoid the bat then jump to the double conveyor belt. Jump off of the end to the high platform. Go to the top of the first rock, don't right then hold up. Repeat to get to the moving platform. Jump from it to the ledge and beat up the snail. Grab the worms the frog to exit bottom right. Drop to the right and left to collect the weapons, etc. Drop right to hit the platform then onto the other. Go up to the top one (probably) then jump off of the top of the screen. Look out for the hat. Go up the platform to the top. Get the bat on the right, go up the rope, and collect the green skeleton. Kill the mine then get the soup. Kill the skeleton and go right under the crusher. Jump the tin hat and go under the second crusher. Make sure you get the gun or you're in trouble.

Make your way across the screen and up the ladder then get the treasure and trap off of the screen. Shoot the hanging bats and go right, go up the ledge and avoid the drone, jump up, shoot and down in the next screen. Drop, avoid the snake and get the treasure, go round the screen then drop. Avoid the bat, stand your ground and kick onto the skeleton's tail. Go right up the stairs. Get the gem then head down. Work your way right, over the moving platforms and get the gun. Drop onto the queen's tail.

It is a big worm thing with many teeth. If you missed the gun you'll best of his adventures to date. And I've completed The level. Here's how to do it.

All the start, but to the bomb or vice. The bat will eat you off. Avoid the bat and the two skeletons. Go right, under the invisible bat and drop a little onto the snake pipe. Jump over the gap. Walk a little right (avoiding the bat) and let the missile drop. Drop off of the platform, and left to the central column. Shoot the mine and grab the coin.

Work your way to the two bats (avoiding the laser gun - you can grab it without being hit) if you trap it right. Shoot the evil mine and go under the crusher. Don't go down the ladder as this makes the rest of the level much harder.

Drop down the shaft, get the cat of worms and shoot the skeleton, wait for the frog to go back then go up the ladder. Get the items then drop down again. Go right to the platform, beat up and go down.

Lurch over the pipe. To kill the rat, jump up and down on the spot and kick them go under the pipe and follow the track right (kill the purple bat on the way) and jump over the truck. Grab the treasure, avoid the bat and go down to the coin. Avoid the bat, kick the rat and go right. Get the other rat then go right.

Go up the big pipe then left right to the platform. Avoid the bat and get the gem, then kick the hanging bat. Climb the pipe, snail, worm on the horizontal one by going left through it, then drop to the right onto the platform. Kick the rat, go right onto the sludge and hit the skeleton. Go to the bomb. Then come back and go through the pipe to the shaft. As you climb, hold down right to get the cat of worms. Get the bomb at the bottom. Avoid the bat and go to the top of the rope then come down to miss the then drop.

Hold left for the treasure. Jump back the rat then jump onto the conveyor. Get onto the large double belt and get the other. Jump to the higher conveyor. Avoid them to get in close and kick him. Otherwise stand at a distance. Avoid the bullets then run. Only hit him as soon as he appears, else he won't take any damage after he begins firing.

As Lester
Pogget might

Money, son I love it! Gamma, more of the lovely stuff! I want to make millions, but how do I go about it? Do I sell my body to medical science? Do I buy one of those "Make Money Quick" books for $19.99 including postage and packaging? Or I risk Treason and sell out. Based on this corner of Garden Loops? Nope, I'll have a little flutter on the horse tracks, and we'll see my stake money grow into a mount on an exotic sportscopelife!

Unfortunately I've spent me last $14.99 on the horse racing game from Mindscape so that I have to do, and I'll have to wait for my next pay cheque for next year's pay to accumulate that amount of money again to drive. So I'll off to the Lot's Preferred race track for my and my chums, and we'll put pretend money on sports horses.

The last game to allow us to do that was Daily Double (shown in last issue) and although Ash thought it was okay, I thought it was a pile of horse shite and I have the occasional flutter on the odd night matter. So when Omni-Play Horse Racing finally decided to load on my $550 I wasn't too expectant.

Money, Money, Money

The new five pence coins are absolutely disgusting. When I was first given one I thought that I'd been dicked with a foreign coin. But no matter how weird and small and disgusting they are, they can't possibly be as downright nasty as the new five pound notes. Surely the Queen doesn't look THAT old, and who designed the colour scheme, Andy Warhol?

I was nicely surprised though (by the presentation at first), because the amount of options and the ways to play it are very rewarding for the passive gambler. For a start, it allows up to four players to participate, and the computer will make up the other bettors (up to the total of twenty) and you can have three difficulty levels to play at, and the win conditions can be set by you (ie the first person, or computer player) to reach the target, win the game). There are Win, Place, Show, Exact, Quinella, and Triple betting options. You can buy live from other bettors, and you can even plough through all the bets odds and jockey ratings that you'd want to.

I think I'll have a betting first!

And there are even countless options when you have placed your bet and you settle down to watch the race. You can watch from overhead, or which mode you take the horses in number form, or you can watch from the side of the track, only watching to overhead when the horses are going round corners. After the race you can even have a photo-finish slow of any of the final positions, showing how close the horses were at the winning post.

There are track conditions and just about everything that has ever happened on the real tatts. In fact inside, you can even have shoppy horses and jockeys, so even the fanside might have a particularly fast day.

Game Play has mixed a complex game with some excellent graphical sequences, and some exciting gameplay. Its game got better each time, and they are starting to edge ahead of TV sports products in their implementation.

What a big money game! My mind is confident, I hope that's my horse or I'll be big bucks.

As the film roll towards you, your paddle can move to cover those paths.

DARK -
$9.99 Tape,
$14.99 Disk

No, KLAX isn't some kind of weird Tropical disease. It's more a way of life.

I've got the Klax. Before you retreat to a quarantine zone, let me tell you that Klax is the latest arcade conversion that Darkstar have brought to the small screen of your 64. And to say that it's astonishingly good would be doing it an injustice. In fact it is very strongly related.

On the face of it it doesn't sound all that special. A load of flies are winding their busy way down an intergalactic conveyor belt. Your task is to stop them from falling into the void by catching them on your paddle and tapping them onto a pit. You might think that that sounds easy. Well, it is at first of course, if you could just throw them in any old way. But in order to avoid overfilling the pit, you'll need to be devious.

Extracted from Intergalactic Klax Training Manual Volume 3: "The very nature of the drifting space idea is in doubt. They are made of some strange compound that has no reaction with other colours, but when exposed to at least two more of its own colour, it will glow brightly, and mysteriously disappear". It matters

If you call me a broadband again I'll say, ha-ha-ha I will!

Phaggg!

There are five bands, one for each place in the pit. The paddle can carry up to five flies before being deactivated, and each of the pit's five bands can take up to five flies each. At the start of each screen the task for that level is set. This might be to score a certain amount of points, survive for a set number of flies, or just to make a number of Klaxes. A Klax is three flies of the same colour in a row. Get four in a row and it instantly doubles, five in a row counts as a triple.

Walk Like an Egyptian

Domark is a software company, not something that a baker washes off of his rolling pin.

Ticos were first invented by the Ancient Egyptians, but theirs weren't delivered to them on large conveyor belts. Their football team was reputedly the best in the world in 1998 BC. Unfortunately, the World Cup didn't appear until nearly four thousand years later.

As well as a straight line, there are other more exotic Klasses. You can make a Big K, which uses multiple tiles of the same color in a huge room; you can set up multiple Klasses which award bonus points. But should a tile fall over the edge, it gives a little screen and one of the lights on the dispenser lights up. Light all three and the game's over. The game also ends if you fill all of the space in the art. Lesser mortals will welcome the credits option that lets you continue on if you die, just like the arcade.

Very nice graphics, although

It's a lot like Lego, only it's not really.

quite simple as you'd expect, and the sound is very cheap and adds to feel of the game. If you like action-puzzling games then try it out, you won't be disappointed.

Surely not? Oh

yeah Yummy.

Although Christmas is traditionally the time for good chess, games and poolball to all Mankind. It's a shame that Accolade have decided to be generous in this time. All time favourites feature four great little games for a song. Sorry, that's how Kyle Minogue pays for things. You will have to part with some cash, but not all that much. The four games are Hardball, Test Drive, Mini Putt and Apollo 16. Hardball was thought that they had done a compilation of sports games. Nope. Apollo 16 put the brakes on that theory.

Test Drive is a classic driving game. It's you against the clock, the law and the other driver as you push your high-performance car to the limits of its endurance and speed. The view is from behind the wheel. You'll need to keep an eye on the petrol gauge, the rear view mirror and the rev counter as well as the road ahead if you're going to succeed. Things can get pretty hot behind the wheel of a Porsche or Ferrari so you'll have to learn fast too. At various places along the way there are pitstops to refuel your tank. Miss one out and it's a game over first, but pull in and you'll get a pitcrew-report.

via the joystick. It was good in its time but looks dated now.

Mini Puff is an odd game. It replicates the dangers and excitement of the crazy golf course. Don your plus fours and perfect cap and go forth with keen eye and sharp putter. All of the classic holes are Obviously wind is less of a factor in crazy golf and there is absolutely no need to shout "FOGGY" unless you want to score the ball out of your friend's hair line up to take his shot. Good fun.

Finally, Apollo 18 is a space mission. You have to fly to the moon and retrieve a probe which landed there in 1967, and repair it in space. There's websites that are badly in need of their 10,000,000 mile service. Of course you'll have to catch them first. Each mission has about eight components, from take off to re-entry and eventual splashdown. Along the way you'll probably have to try your hand at motivational too. I've always found space simulations to be a bit on the bland side, and my opinion hasn't really been changed by Apollo 18.

Certainly not a bad bug. There's better games around, but for the price of one in good value. Worth looking at.

COMICS

Revolver #1
Fleebway
£1.65

2000AD offerings are coming at us thick and fast, and there's loads more to look or test than

Revolver Almost all the feature reader (the rest of today's 'vod' comics) it supplies what it promises. It is reminiscent of the other comics of the 60s (Deadline A1, and perhaps even Strip) but with one major difference, it is full colour from cover to cover, something that perhaps suggests that it is aimed at a younger readership than originally expected.

The strips themselves are all suitably different from each other with the intention that they contrast with other favourably. To me, though, it looks as if one or two of them were lost inside envelopes that stick out like a sore thumb.

The high point is undoubtedly Dens, an up-to-date new-age version of Dan Dare in a sort-of Dark Knight Batman guise, although the bio-bio tale Purple Days, based around the exploits of Jane Harbison, is pretty poor in comparison.

Revolver is almost the comic of today, but has a way to catch up with the ever-improving Deadline (see Henderson).

Aliens Vs. Predator #1
Dark Horse
$2.50

The two separate titles, Aliens and Predator, are selling incredibly well, and have been major successes since their launch. Since would therefore indicate that a team up between them would be one hot story.

And it is for this fact that the comic comes as no surprise to anyone. What does come as a surprise is that humanity are also involved in a plot that even Twentieth Century Fox would be proud of.

There are three humans out, and they are incredibly unlikely because not only have the

Predators decided to pay them a visit, but the Aliens want a slice of the action too.

And in this tale of complete carnage where everybody is an enemy the only thing you are guaranteed will be action.

Artwork is reasonable, and the writing is very good, and it comes at a time when both Predator 2 and Alien 3 have both been announced. I wonder what is next though, James meets the Aliens and the Predators, but lets foul of the Thing, who's cousin is the Black 1.

The Real Thing
Real Enterprises
28 Blackmar Road
London H10 3JG
£14 a season
or £6p a game

Football PBMs are a mainstay of the hobby, and they are increasing in playability and complexity every year. The most realistic of games so far would have to be The Real Thing, and it is surprisingly also one of the cheapest.

A PBM, for those who are unsure, is a Play by Mail game, a way of playing a game by post. In The Real Thing, you are the manager of a football team and you must guide your team to glory against other such managers. At the time of writing, there are two divisions of 12 teams each, and more are to come. Real Enterprises also states that more leagues will follow once each one is filled.

Turn around the time in which you will receive each result sheet is around 3-4 weeks, so patience is a virtue, but unlike football management games on the coming, the thrill of creating a real person is a thrill unto itself.

A third division is currently being prepared, so if you write to Real Enterprises mentioning 'YO', you'll receive a free rulebook.

Back to the Future Part 2 CIC

Now available for rental is the sequel to one of the best-loved films of some time: and it arrives on the rest of the Third and final part in the trilogy. Back to the Future Part 2 is far more complex in plot than its predecessor, but retains all the pace, action and overall comic. Again it stars Michael J. Fox and Christopher Lloyd, and carries on directly where the last one left off.

Dr Emmet Brown (Lloyd) arrives back in 1985 to warn Marty (Fox) and his bride-to-be that their future children are in trouble and that they must travel with him to help them.

Naturally they both do, and they find that the future is fraught with just about the same dangers as in their own time. They manage to succeed in what they went to do, but Marty has other plans too, in the shape of a sports calendar detailing all the results of sport events for many years into their own future. In quick fulfilment and he could be right. This is where things start to go wrong.

The film then fits from time period to time period.

Including 1945, the setting of the original movie. The outcome tricky at first, and in the past there are three Marty McFlys.

On the screen all are 'Marty'. The game is clearly and at times it is hard to keep up, but it's worthwhile to do so, and anyway being an idea you can always rerun the scenes you don't quite understand.

Take a large,

excellent graphics and stomach churning action and take away the large, hydraulic operated bit, and the excellent graphics, and what have you got?

Remember Afterburner, with its excellent type and style sheet? Well this sequel to the arcade war the big, bad joltie, that ran in steel and jerked around violently, and cost a hefty pound soon in London's Oxford Street. Now Activision, like its cousin sockets, has decided that the comfy 64 should stamp the delights (?) of the original, and the only things that seem to have transferred successfully is the need to have a bucket present after playing, so that you can tidy help again to the contents of your stomach.

This is not because the action is frantic, nor is it because you can get a friend to spin you around and shake your chest when you are playing. The reality of it is that the colours on the screen, and the graphics are so blocky and jerry, that the whole thing is like watching one being attacked by large swamp blocks can't what it's cracked up to be. The Death Star offer is a few short miles in the distance, and all they give you is a ship made of Lego!

of those kaleidoscope things flash past your eyes every nano-second.

To make matters worse there is a plot that would give George Lucas a coronary, and his lawyers a new task, as there is a galaxy that has been taken over by a dark and evil force, called the North Empire (oh, oh, oh, summer!) and they threaten the future of distant civilisations (ahem!) There are five planets in the centre of the galaxy that have been taken over by the North Empire (oh, oh, oh, summer!) and you, as a member of the elite (oh, oh, oh, summer!) must destroy them by flying over the planets while blowing the wing out of everyone and everything (oh, oh, oh, summer!) and then you can stop or continue.

Ummm!

Galaxy is a brand of very famous chocolate and if you eat six Galaxy Easter eggs you'll find that you end up sitting on the toilet with your head over a separate bowl, making peculiar noises, all of the holiday! Venus on the other hand is a terrible record by Don Pablo's Animals, Bananarama, and a band that we can't quite remember.

This is done through your family go everywhere, and among everything (back-on target system) just 5 seconds at your level related as it looks on its very strong, to consistent water of operations, allowing you to just take your finger on the fire button and while the joystick about a bit. If you while it fast enough, you'll most probably save the planets and wipe out the threat of the Forth Empire (or, do, do, dummm), as that's about the extent of the gameplay, although you can spend your drift up or slow it down with some drift sticks of the space bar, but I never bothered and it didn't seem to make much reference

If you've ever played Afterburner you'll get my drift: it's very similar, and the gameplay is high to vertical. The graphics though are actually worse (if that's possible) and the only saving grace that the game may have is its speed. Galaxy Force is the painted release from Activision for a long while and may provide it to remember such ludicrous arcade conversions.

US GOLD -
$29.99 Tape,
$14.99 Disk

Every four years the World Cup comes and goes, and so do the related footy games. WIK looks at one of the more accurate ones.

Of all the footy games that hit us this summer (July 1990 must have the best presentation. You get a lovely big box, a chance to see it top in Italy (and well scored by now), slip off a World Cup joystick, a splendid (if rather small) poster, a very glossy world cup book (titled the of-fer!) that tells you everything you ever wanted to know about the world cup past and present, and oh yes there's the game disk too.

After all this (and you might be a little wary of what the game is like, I mean, we AJ, remember World Cup Camel, don't we?) But push, shoo, nudge the game is a bit good if you know what I mean?

There are two loads involved on the cassette version, the first is the setup, next, and duddy selective screen where you get to choose the game options and learn you wish to play. Each team has different ability ratings for skill, speed, aggression, and strength, all out of five.

Then, on your first attempt at winning the World Cup you might want to try Great or West Germany, but when you feel like an expert at it, Cameroon or Costa Rica would be a stiffer challenge. The team selection is real presentation was too, so all the teams and away strips, plus the

ITALY

Flags of the nations, are all displayed.

Once this is done the second load takes place and then you are faced with more options in the way of team and formation selection. You have a squad of twenty players (just like the 22 in the real World Cup) to choose the best players to fit your chosen formation out of players who all have individual skill, speed, aggression and strength ratings (the game doesn't require sub!) Once this is done they all trot onto the pitch with a roar from the fans, but no effort is made simulating the national anthems as if they are playing through a kumby (like in real life). All the players look as if they have been on steroids for the time being, but at least there are names of them, unlike some other games, and they wear the colours that you'd normally find them in.

The player nearest the ball flashes from the colour worn in white and back again almost as if he has rejected his moral stance in a plug racket, but this is a far better method of player recognition than the flashing arrow that follows players in other games. And it is in this gamely section that Italy 1990 performs best. If comparisons were to be made between this and THAT football game (Squid 125, if you will) that this would be my choice as the World in Motion

The lyrics to New Order's World in Motion were written by Keith Allen, who is an alternative comedian and a member of the Comic Strip. He is best known for his portrayal of The Yob. He was also assisted by Craig Johnston, the ex-Liverpool singer who is now sunning it in his native Australia.

better of the two, that is until THAT game's sequel is released pretty soon.

You can do many things that most games allow you to. You can head, kick, nod, slide, dribble, dribble, and even run with the ball if you want. This is because unlike THAT game your boots all seem to be dipped in Golden Syrup as you head and turn and the ball sticks miraculously to your feet. There is a provision for fouls and even yellow and red cards, distributed by a referee in the stands as he is nowhere to be seen on the pitch, and every time there is a ref's decision the commentator promptly tells you so. Fouls though come free and far between, and the referee only games again (I suppose look very unrealistic indeed) that it is no damn playable than those little mediocrities are belittled. Another new touch is the score time and penalties option if that tough game ends in a draw.

There is little this game doesn't have, although the offside rule is missing yet again, which still adds up for an enjoyable little number, if a bit limited. I must admit I got through to the semi-finals with Brazil in my very first play at the game. I don't even play a practice match, so the simple gameplay might be a touch too simple but this is not a problem as games in this file never have too much of a shall life. It's nearly as good as the real thing although the referees in this version do not practice their smug demeanor on the pitch.

PAINTING THE TOWN RED

The YC team take on an Empire team at Terminator

reports from a small hole.

it is there that urban warriors can

Terminator is based in a burnt-out

All kitted up, you're ready to anything. A normal urge at this point is to check the gun they (DOFF - BPLAT - Aaagh) pack some punch:

the paint balls fly at close to the legal maximum speed of 280 feet per second so to make little difference.

What has not been revealed until now is that not only did a YC team head down to Kilburn but so did an Empire team (pushers of - £60000, £800 - very competitive). What's more, they'd played before. On the Saville mainy (about £5-50, an excerpt in Popular Computing Weekly) was on a "mugging" for YC.

Unkempt into the waiting area

Boys and guns, part I

(with "Predator" showing on a screen in the corner and several arcade machines & a sofa lined around) we were told that our objective was the capture of the opposing team's flag. We had to find where it had been hidden, run with it (in full view) back to our HQ and look after it until the end of the game. Er. Right.

The two teams were led off to their respective telephones. Our flag was stashed in a small room at the top of the cinema, at the end of a long corridor, and the boys divided into defenders and attackers (that sounds right, most of the YC National staff ought to be locked up). The game began and the latter let disappointed.

Being in defence during a paintball game is like defence in school football. You get no action for most of the game, although you can hear it, or even see it, in the distance. I could hear the sound of guns firing and hitting either walls or people and the occasional shout of "Mars! Mars!" (the nearest

7. Marcus: He was so confident he even brought his own gun. They don't allow Gattings though.

3. Michelle: Looking sweet and nervous. You should see her with a gun in her hand.

4. Douglas: What the hell is he doing, we were paintballing not fishing!

8. Chris: Doesn't he look ominous.

1. Er. Can't quite remember his name. He was good though!

Marshal is there to oversee the game) followed by guns firing and shouted shouts of "I said don't shoot, MARSHAL!"

God this, I thought after many tense minutes. As the new soundtrack got more persistent and Limp stayed as distant as ever, I was on the move: darting into a doorway behind sliding doors the rest of the stage where the rest is used to be. As the game-time revealed its end I was onto the stage - where was the opposition?

I jumped nervously over the velvet-thrustrapped open area, before descending into the concrete depths. Around me were the sounds of popping guns and shouting fighters. I had a choice of direction, either over a steel foot wall, through what looked like a brick fireplace or through the water main. The hole in the brick looked mighty small so I opted for the water main. I could see the door on the other side. The murky liquid covered my investigative trachea and I felt it cooling my neck and face. Good as well! Push.

I opted for the wall. As I tried to pivotate onto it I heard the cracking sound of a gun going off. A paintball cracked into the wall. Someone was sniping at me. I ducked and looked around. Another crack and something bounced off my head, unexploded. A lucky escape.

Had it blown open I would have been "killed" for ten minutes and off to the waiting area to enjoy a vid before returning to the fray.

The game then ended. I trudged to the "ounge" watching others emerging from their hiding places. No-one could tell who had won, although Limp hadn't even made an effort to capture the VC flag. Such confusion meant that my job had to declare it a glorious VC victory.

The second game was a lot more typical. Host Salomon Flurdis divided into pairs, it was a knockout tournament. Salomon himself (aka a Alex, Terminator 2 clone) was dead anyway when successfully hunted - and finally disqualifying the tournament that got him (no-one mentioned rules against tournaments) bad news, I say.

The only real disappointment was finishing after the pub had closed. The VC team were victorious to the end as they left Killzone - I still water.

Terminator is at "The Old Broadway Cinema" 4 Kilburn High Road, London, NW5 - (071 828 7037) Open 7 days a week, day and evening. Price: £10 flat fee. Over 18s ONLY!

8. Simon, and if he doesn't look like Rob Austin then VC isn't the best 44 map!

9. Here, looking much like Fuzzie Bear, and lurking for some reason.

10. Rob: Why does he always have to have his mouth open?

11. Ash: The editor of Your Anzhi with the infamous release and intent.

12. Jeffrey: The man behind this escapade, and defensive genius.

13. Ash, Oh come on, it wasn't THAT boring!

14. Rob (the photographer): You must see this, why do you think all the evil were laughing?

MIGHT and MAGIC II

Fantasy role playing on the Commodore

will never be the same again.

Might and Magic II is more or less a standard in the lexicon of computer roleplaying games. That is, it is a sprawling adventure set in a mysterious land. This land is plagued by many evils (or goods, if you're that way inclined) that desperately need slaughtering mercilessly, and as a band of hapless adventuring types you've got the job.

Most roleplaying games have the attraction of building up the power of a group of people, whilst making the job less and less about the better with them as rich as possible. Generally speaking, the more advanced into a game you get, the higher your character's "level" becomes. This means that the characters become more adept at handing out large amounts of damage to lots of nasty monsters, scooping up wide areas of treasure and just romping around the land spreading their influence.

Might and Magic II is typical in that respect. However, it is completely atypical (there's a word for the day) in as much as it is completely superb in every respect, and is possibly the best role playing game on the IBM. I know that I've said that before, but this game is different.

The action takes place in the mythical land of Gorn. Gorn is more or less the average mythical land, with lots of mythical towns and villages, mythical roads and fields and mythical people and monsters. There are literally hundreds of monsters to meet and interact with. Usually this interaction involves a lot of gratuitous violence but you can bribe monsters or merely run away

Go on then, I'll have a go!

They mean much more that way. The characters are "rolled up" in the need Personality

Once you've assembled your force, you have to take them off into the land. You start at an inn, where you apparently meet up and decided to adventure together. The rules for putting a party together are very strict, so you can only assemble good, neutral and evil. If you feel so inclined. However, genuine roleplayers will want to keep their party "pure", either having all good or all evil with the odd neutral. Another nice touch that experienced roleplayers will appreciate is that all spellcasters, whether good or evil, can use the same spells.

The screen display is neat and clear, though it looks a tad cluttered at times. There are windows for virtually everything, including a view of the location that you are in, a list of all the party for the characters and any vital information. Conversation (which is somewhat limited admittedly) takes place in another window. The party will often meet people who offer quests to the party, and you can decide to take them on or not.

Graphically the game is great. The characters are well-drawn and imaginative. They give a good light and you'll have to be careful about what you challenge at first. Assuming that you will a monster, you'll probably find some treasure. This doesn't come easy either, as it is kept in some sort of box which may well be trapped. The traps will need to be disarmed if you want a share of the spoils but fail in the attempt and it's an early grave for you.

As you progress, the game carefully adjusts itself to cater for your higher level of power. Thus the monsters get more dangerous and cunning, the puzzles get harder to solve and the treasure gets more and more rewarding. If you've ever played a roleplaying game then you'll be hooked by this one. It's really down to earth stuff, very playable and realistic. Go out and get it.

Might is another word for strength, whilst magic means supernatural.

Thus, Might and Magic means supernatural strength. As far as we know, Lynx deciderant have no plans to launch either Might or Magic as new additions to their range.

Your party will need to be created before any violence can occur (after all, you're only doing it for the score, so why violence?). There are pre-created characters of various levels but it's always more fun to take characters from level one to the top.

ALIENS (US VERSION)

Alternative - £3.99

Oh, I remember coming out of the cinema at around midnight after watching Aliens. No groans, dog, or even lampost-scoped the hot leader death that my fingers expelled in an effort to emulate the big screen actions. And when Activision released the UK version, expectations were not only high, but fulfilled.

The US version was not as accurate as the surprise and share horror as its UK counterpart, but nonetheless, it was, and still is, a great game.

Being multi-task, you will be forgiven for casting several doubts but each of the sections are very playable indeed, and there are passwords for each level that allows you to enter that level at the beginning.

The graphics are typical of American Activision games

(Blondebustard, Petal) and although rather basic, they serve their purpose rather well. The gameplay too is of a high standard. Although the game has none of the dark mood of its big screen counterpart, now that it's at a budget price, care of Alternative, it's worth a go as a piece of nostalgia.

Paul Hardcastle is long gone, and not many will remember his number one smash hit R'n-B-disco. Cascade though, and released this game at full-price in the Past, certainly did, and had a library of games based upon the hit single went up. Only one game appeared though, and here it is.

It's not half bad, for a completely music effort, and it consists of four 'training' sections. Each will allow you to display your paces speed monitor and Adrian Pampfery like release (am... am... am... I've got... am... good... am... release)

The first is based on a assault course and is probably the hardest of 'em all. Second is the best, as it is a rifle range that is seen through the sight of your weapon (no score from this). The third is a jump driving section much in the mold of Fluffy Boy. And the fourth and final section is hand-to-hand combat with your drill instructor. If the sequel(s) were also available, the game would be a little more worthwhile, but it's a good value buy at £3.99 for almost four complete games.

Alternative - £2.99

Not another no-nonsense, yet another big name license, and yet another escape game hits the streets.

Andy Capp, as it is sure you already know, is based on the very popular long-running comic strip in the Daily Mirror, and is about as funny, and inventive as its counterpart.

You are the beer drinking, wife-cheating, police-slapping kilt who must raise cash in order to give Ploffer housekeeping. I have never encountered a game that is quite so alive and lively even though it has pretty girls and plenty of lager.

It is a sort of arcade adventure and the characters are fairly well animated as they pld around the streets of wherever the living-rooms though are absolutely splendid and the gameplay is so lively as it's better than a Megaduck for putting you to sleep. Microsoft were the culprit: the first time round, now the company behind the Pro Mountain Bike Simulator has succeeded to find a worthy successor to the steady sale of pcd crown. Not so much Andy Capp, more Andy. We can guess the rest.

COUNT DUCKULA

Alternative - £2.99

Alternative was the first budget company to release original. Long history of a budget price, and it has had much success in doing so (just remember Pit and Thomas the Tank Engine being just two), and now Count Duckula (the earliest spin-off from Dangerous and gets the home computer treatment). Performed by Eugene Marinone (now a celebrity in its own right, with several cartoon licenses of its own coming up), Count Duckula manages to capture the Cosgrove Hall production wonderfully.

Instead of thinking up a new idea and hoping that it would work, at a budget price you can be forgiven for reworking an old theme as long as it is done well. And CD is.

The game does much to the adventure/platform games of the past, and as the first version you must find a magical suspension in order to transport you back to your beloved home in the darkness.

Summit - £2.99

You're probably becoming rather fed up of football games at the very moment so TOUGHEN UP! we've got another one!

This is yet another excellent, and very hard memory allows me to visualize a time when I can have clutching this game after having the necessary wings. It promises demolition derby game. This is not as easy as it sounds though, as it is hidden in the enormous parking lot is littered with cars and machines (but not so many dodges).

The graphics are nothing short of superb and are very similar to those of the original (but not so many dodges). They move smoothly, and accurately. The moves is feasible for about two minutes and then the volume control becomes a necessity. A winner though (it is budget price anyway) is normally made up of both (gameplay and average everything else). Count. Double has far more going for it.

That is a real shame cause the basic management structure is superb with people not reporting the everything that no other body management game could deliver at that time, and the prizes were not outrageous, but there was one big money prize. THE CUP WAS SO BLOWN.

It took about half a minute for each result to go through the vidprinter, and there were results for each game in the three divisions. Even the gates for all

And now it's a big welcome to the Sooty & Sweep computer show - starring Sooty and his ever-amazing magic wand, that magical Sweep armed with a noisy water pistol and good old Sooty, who is always around when trouble looms.

Yep kids, your favourite fluffy twosome will be in big trouble cos Matthew is out and that scary Sweep has not only left his dirty old bones all over the house but he has also left the door to the garden wide open and let all the creepy creatures creep and crawl all around the house.

So it's 'Tory Wally' (a girl 'Wally') as you attempt to save the day by collecting up the bones, which have, been left in the most irrelevant places, whilst avoiding the bugs. And that's about it really. Sooty & Sweep is (as he had in a two-player game) knocking bones off each other or throwing gooey custard pies (something I've always wanted to do to Phil).

Basically the only magic trick I'd want to do would be to wave my magic wand and make the game disappear off screen (then in ground-up mode the gameplay is annoying and inevitably boring. Says his Harry and the TV Show any day).

"I took the children to the woods, the engine to the hospital, the tractor to the broken bridge and delivered the mail, the coal and the oil to the refinery - all before the sun went down each day just as you told me."

"Well done Thomas!" Chuckled the Fat Controller, and he stroked down to the village pub to top his daily 15 pints of scotch pop, down a full bag of Lancelotti dogsnouts from the village bakery and paid over Lenny the Lamport!

Alternative is certainly on the right track in this endearing little game for 'toddlers' of all ages as you complete all the tasks whilst avoiding other trains, fallen objects and digital corners. With bright and chunky graphics and a breezy tune, it's all a bit could hope for in a game which not only provides loads of enjoyment, and ensuring good fun, but also an educational excuse to play a game. A right raving tale!

THE PURPLE PUZZLE PAGE

Why did the monkey fall out of the tree?
He was dead.

Why did the koala bear fall out of the tree?
Cause he was holding on to the monkey's hand.

Why did the squirrel fall out of the tree?
He thought it was a game.

Colour by numbers.
Colour the following numbers
like so: 1=BLACK,
2=BLACK,
3=BLACK.
What have you got
Answer: An empty
Go bin.

Bloop! Here I am with more puzzles
that'll stretch your poor human minds
so far that you'll be near worldwide
flight paths.

Spot the ball

Can you spot the ball in the picture below?

My first is in Robert, but not in Ray.
My second is in now and also today.
My third is in always but missing in team.
My fourth is something that we all see through.
My fifth is in nose and also in knee.
My sixth is in grass but not in a tree.
What am I?

Answer: BOREDOM

ONE DAY AT SCHOOL...

AND MR JONES
IS SUCH A ROTTER!!

YEAH!

WELL I RANG
F.A.S.T. AND TOLD THEM
ABOUT IT.

AND NOW MR JONES
LET'S EVERYBODY COPY SOFTWARE AND BURN SOME
IT. MYSELF!
